

Content unit

Short Video Script Concept / 30-Second Cinematic CRE Explainer

Intended placement

YouTube Shorts · LinkedIn video post · Instagram Reels · Facebook video post · internal marketing content library

Short Video Script Concept

Source deal: Vallejo Retail Strip Center Acquisition

Value-Add Retail Needs a Clear Plan

Target length: 30 seconds
Format: vertical-first, square-compatible short video
Visual base: one continuous cinematic camera fly-over / parallax motion from the source property image
Status: short video content unit; not an AI-avatar proposal

Editorial thesis / purpose

A high-vacancy retail acquisition becomes easier to understand when the current asset condition , borrower plan, bridge structure , timing , and proposed exit path are presented together. The video turns one public funded-deal source into a short broker-useful explainer, not a generic transaction announcement.

Visual concept:
One continuous cinematic camera fly-over / parallax move across the retail strip center property image. The motion should feel premium, calm, and commercial-real-estate appropriate: slow push-in, gentle lateral drift, realistic depth, clean typography, and no visual implication of leasing, renovation, repositioning, pad-sale success, tenant demand, or market recovery.

30-second voiceover script

Value-add retail works best when the financing story is clear.

In this Vallejo retail example, the property was acquired from a servicer, carried high vacancy, and needed bridge financing at a transitional stage.

The borrower brought development experience and a plan involving renovations, re-tenanting, and potential pad sales.

The useful takeaway is how the current asset condition, borrower plan, bridge structure, timing, and proposed exit path fit together.

For brokers, that clarity makes the financing conversation easier to understand.

On-screen text pack

- 1. Value-add retail needs a clear plan.
- 2. $5.7M acquisition / bridge loan
- 3. Vallejo retail strip center
- 4. 150,000 SF · 14.16 acres
- 5. High-vacancy property · servicer acquisition
- 6. Experienced developer · renovation plan
- 7. Re-tenanting · potential pad sales
- 8. Bridge structure · timing · proposed exit path
- 9. Bring the facts and the plan into one clear package

Thumbnail / cover text + CTA

Recommended thumbnail text:
Value-Add Retail Needs a Clear Plan

Alternative cover options:
When Retail Needs Bridge Financing
Facts + Plan + Structure
Beyond the Purchase Story

Recommended CTA:
View more funded loan examples from Rubicon Mortgage Fund.

30-second visual beats

0–10 sec — Hook and deal identity
Slow cinematic fly-over begins over the retail strip center image. The viewer sees the property as the video introduces the value-add retail framing and the Vallejo deal identity.

On-screen text:
Value-add retail needs a clear plan.
$5.7M acquisition / bridge loan
Vallejo retail strip center

10–20 sec — Property context and borrower plan
The cinematic camera motion continues across the same property image. The video introduces the property scale, high-vacancy context, servicer acquisition, and borrower plan.

On-screen text:
150,000 SF · 14.16 acres
High-vacancy property · servicer acquisition
Experienced developer · renovation plan
Re-tenanting · potential pad sales

20–30 sec — Deal Prism takeaway
The camera movement slows into a calm closing composition. The video connects the facts into the practical broker takeaway: structure, timing, and proposed exit path should be presented together.

On-screen text:
Bridge structure · timing · proposed exit path
Bring the facts and the plan into one clear package

Deal Prism value:
One public funded-deal source becomes a cinematic short-video explainer with a clear hook, source-bound deal context, broker-useful takeaway, and review controls — without adding unsupported facts or implying outcome success.